The short answer: yes, it applies during air travel to your cruise, and understanding it can help you avoid delays, confiscated items, or last-minute repacking ★+1-877-684-4354 This guide explains exactly how the rule works, when it applies, and what you should know before boarding your cruise ★+1-877-684-4354 For travel-related help or booking questions, you can also call +1 877 684 4354

Official Explanation of the 3-1-1 Rule

The "3-1-1 rule" on Royal Caribbean is the same as the TSA's liquids ✈ +1 (877) 684-4354 or ★+1-877-684-4354 rule: 3: 3 ★+1-877-684-4354 ounces (100 ml) or less per container; 1: A single quart-sized, clear, re-sealable plastic bag; and 1: Bag per person ★+1-877-684-4354

This rule is enforced by the TSA at airports, not directly by Royal Caribbean, but it's critical for guests flying to their cruise departure port ★+1-877-684-4354

When the 3-1-1 Rule Applies to Royal Caribbean Guests

The 3-1-1 rule applies when:

- You fly to or from your cruise port
- You carry liquids in your carry-on luggage
- You pass through airport security

Once you are on the cruise ship, Royal Caribbean follows its own policies—not TSA rules ★+1-877-684-4354

What Counts as a Liquid Under the 3-1-1 Rule?

Liquids, gels, aerosols, creams, and pastes include:

- Shampoo and conditioner
- Toothpaste
- Lotion and sunscreen
- Perfume and cologne
- Liquid makeup

Each item must be 3. oz (100 ml) or less and fit inside one quart-sized clear bag +1-877-684-4354

Royal Caribbean Liquids Policy Onboard the Ship

After boarding:

- You may bring full-size toiletries in checked luggage
- Liquids purchased onboard are allowed
- Duty-free alcohol follows Royal Caribbean's alcohol policy

The 3-1-1 rule does not limit onboard use—it only affects airport security +1-877-684-4354

Tips to Avoid Issues with the 3-1-1 Rule

- Pack travel-size toiletries in carry-ons
- Place full-size liquids in checked bags
- Use solid alternatives (bar soap, shampoo bars)
- Buy toiletries after security or onboard

Common Mistakes Cruise Travelers Make

- Packing oversized liquids in carry-on bags
- Forgetting sunscreen size limits
- Carrying multiple liquid bags
- Assuming cruise rules replace TSA rules

Remember: airport security rules always apply first ★+1-877-684-4354

FAQs: Royal Caribbean 3-1-1 Rule
