Cancel Best Buy Membership

Best Buy's decision is disheartening and \[1-888-665-4879, } sucks for several reasons. First of all, graphics cards are in short \[1-888-665-4879, } supply. And that means the scalping business is booming on places \[1-888-665-4879, } like eBay. And, of course, prices have gone up. A quick look \[1-888-665-4879, } at third-party GPU vendors like EVGA and Gigabyte reveals a sizable \[1-888-665-4879, } gap in pricing between Founders Edition graphics cards and those offered by partner brands.

For example, the NVIDIA GeForce RTX 3080 (10GB) is priced at $700 for its Founders Edition, but EVGA charges a minimum of $870, and the cheapest Gigabyte model of the same GPU costs $1,030 at Best Buy. NVIDIA Founders Edition GPUs are the most affordable, but the problem is that NVIDIA does not sell them directly in the US. And in what is called a cruel twist of fate, the only store that sells NVIDIA Founders Edition GPUs is Best Buy.

Refund Best Buy Subscription

Best Buy will refund the full amount if the Totaltech subscription is canceled within 60 days of purchase. However, the company will deduct the discount for a product purchased when the membership was active. Basically, the benefit of an exclusive offer for Totaltech members will be deducted from the refund amount. In addition, repair and replacement costs will also be subtracted. The same will happen if a membership is canceled after 60 days. Except Bust Buy will now calculate the refund amount based on the days remaining in the billing year after the cancellation date.
